

Dr Debbie Stach GP Registrar of the Year award nomination form

Purpose

This award celebrates the life of Dr Debbie Stach, who died tragically in a car accident in 2004 soon after completing her GP training with NTGPE. Debbie was an impressive young doctor whose commitment to Indigenous health made her stand out among her peers.

This $10,000 cash prize is awarded annually to a GP registrar who:

- has an outstanding approach to medicine;
- has demonstrated a commitment to improving Indigenous health outcomes in the Northern Territory, and;
- has demonstrated an outstanding approach to professionalism in their work, education and training environments.

GP supervisors, GP registrars and colleagues can submit nominations for an individual they believe is deserving of the award.

Eligibility criteria

- nominee must be enrolled in an NTGPE training program;
- historically, this prize has been awarded to an individual who has demonstrated their commitment to working in the NT after the completion of their GP training with NTGPE.

Payment

$10,000 one-off cash prize.

Nomination dates

Nomination open: 8am, 8 July 2019

Nomination close: 4pm, 9 August 2019.

Nomination contact details

Your full name:

GP supervisor GP registrar colleague

Full name of GP registrar being nominated:

Is the GP registrar currently enrolled in the NTGPE training program? yes no

Nomination details

Please write a 500-word minimum detailed description of the GP registrar you wish to nominate including why the GP registrar would be a deserving recipient of the Dr Debbie Stach Registrar of the Year award.

For further information or to submit a nomination, contact scholarships@ntgpe.org.